

GRAND ROUNDS

PRESENTS

The Role of Mentorship in Academic Surgery

January 18th, 2023

6:30AM — 7:30AM

Marco Patti, MD

Professor of Surgery
Department of Surgery
University of Virginia

Course Objectives:

1. Understand how to choose a mentor.
2. Understand the value of mentorship.
3. Understand the key elements of a successful mentorship program.

The University of Washington School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The University of Washington School of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 20.0 AMA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity. (Each session is 1.0 credits).

Today's speaker has no financial relationships with an ineligible company relevant to this presentation to disclose.

None of the planners have relevant financial relationship(s) to disclose with ineligible companies whose primary business is selling, re-selling, or distributing healthcare products used by or on patients.

*All relevant financial relationships have been mitigated*

Department of Surgery Grand Rounds Contact: dosadmin@uw.edu